Kids Are Not Cars by Dr. Sandra Combs and Dr. Nicole Combs, explains Personalized Systems of Instruction and how Starline Press was developed as a solution. In addition to the research findings are detailed instructions on the implementation of Starline as a system of learning, allowing every child to have his or her education prescribed specifically for them. Henry Ford revolutionized the automobile industry when he applied the assembly line concept to the production of cars. It worked so well, that the process was duplicated in many areas of manufacturing, from clothing to pre-cooked food. Products could now be massed produced at an affordable price. Every family could have a car or clothes or pre-cooked food. The process worked so well, in fact, that it was decided that it would work for educating our young as well. Line the kids up in neat little rows, all children of the same age, being taught the same thing, at the same level, at the same rate, at the same time; what could be more efficient? The problem is that kids are not cars.
