

School Choices: Whats Best for Your Child?

All parents want to give their children the best educational experience possible, but many don't know what to look for when making their selection. Which is best -- home schooling, private schooling, or public schooling? Each child's needs are different, and each family could come to a different conclusion. School Choices gives parents the tools to choose the best type of schooling for their specific situation. Lists of questions in the book help parents determine if they can afford to spend the time and money required for private or home schooling. School Choices also gives parents tools to evaluate the quality of local public schools and private schools by asking about accreditation, teacher credentials, and curriculum. Additionally, parents who choose home schooling will learn how to prepare their home, their children, and their curriculum for this challenging task. School Choices provides parents with questions to help them determine if they can afford the expenditure of time and resources for private or home schooling. Teaches parents how to evaluate the quality of their local public and private schools by asking about accreditation, teacher credentials, and curriculum. Tells parents how to get started in home schooling. How to prepare their home, their children, and their curriculum.
