

fighter388 08/23/2014 One year Duncan implementation pause linking teacher evaluations to test scores: memorization vs innovation - will Duncan save the American school system?

Test scores are being put off in certain states for implementing no child left behind vouchers. This is a last ditch effort not to completely lose the American system of education to a stifling memorization only where the memorization is not even practical in the job market. Also, comparisons are made with the mainland European system of education to hold what works and doesn't work up to spotlight. A good short analysis on how to change US education without changing the structure that not even Duncan can erase.
