The complainant, seeing that his honour had been sufficiently vindicated, withdrew his complaint, declaring that he had gained his right, and was satisfied with the Sultans justice, and at his earnest solicitation the matter was dropped. Such was the kind of justice administered at Agra during the prosperous days of Sher Shah Stir. Sher Shah was a great patron of architecture, and of (he pub-Architectural lie buildings constructed in his time throughout India many exist slwShih. to this day, the admiration of the world. The only architectural relic of his time in Agra is the interesting mosque of Alawal Bilawal, or Shah Wilayat, in Nai Id Mandi, which has sunk into the ground up to about the middle of the walls. The peace of Agra was disturbed during the reign of the last Salem Shah monarchs Bon and successor, Sultan Isldm, better known ns ofBShI Salem Shah Sur, the second son of Sher Shah. Agra was still Shall the Ddr ul Sultanat of India. The claim of Adil Shah, the Adil Shah, eldest son, having been set aside on account of his weakness of brother1 character and imbecility, Salem Shah was saluted Emperor of Hindustan. Immediately on his accession, he invited his elder brother, Adil Shah, to Agra, feigning a desire to tender his allegiance to him and telling him that he had been forced by circumstances alone to occupy the throne, his object being to prevent commotion, and that, as soon as he made his appearance in the capital, he would resign in his favour. Adil Shah arrived at Agra, and a meeting between the brothers was arranged. Salem had given strict orders to the guard of the citadel that his brother
