

Orientation Guide to Mongolia and the Mongolian Culture: Religion, Traditions, Family Life, Urban and Rural Populations, Geography, History, Economy, Society and Security

Perhaps best known for its famous 13th century ruler, Genghis Khan, Mongolia is a young democracy previously under the stewardship of the former Soviet Union. In recent decades, Mongolia has witnessed rapid urbanization and boasts three highly developed, modern cities: Ulaanbaatar (the capital of Mongolia and its most populous city), Darhan, and Erdenet. Much of the country is unspoiled and populated by nomadic and semi-nomadic herders. The population of Mongolia is around 2.7 million people, nearly 44% of whom live in the three principal cities. Mongolia consists of two major ethnic groups: Mongol (94.9%) and Turkic (5%). Ethnic Chinese and Russians are negligible at a combined 0.1% of the population. Traditionally, Mongolians were a nomadic herding people whose livelihood depended on livestock. They grew wheat, barley, and oats in regions where the climate was suitable. Rapid large-scale urbanization beginning in the 1980s has forced people into manufacturing, industrial, and service positions. This book, produced by Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center (DLIFLC), provides comprehensive information about Mongolia and the Mongolian Culture. Chapter topics include religion, traditions, family life and differences in the lifestyles of urban and rural populations as well as detailed discussion of geography, history and their economy, form of government, society and security and much more. 76 pages; dozens of photos, illustrations and charts, many in full color. This is a Print Replica that maintains the formatting and layout of the original edition and offers many of the advantages of standard Kindle books.
