

One Hundred Mile Summers: Hiking the Pacific Crest Trail from Mexico to Canada

The story of a woman backpackers journey from Mexico to Canada (or from the Mexican border to the Canadian border) on the 2,638 mile Pacific Crest Trail. The story includes many adventures: snowstorms in southern California in May, residents pet dogs deciding to tag along, river crossings where bridges had been washed out, being awakened at night by the voices of mysterious animals, and being tracked down by a Ranger with a message to meet a hiking friend who volunteered to accompany her to celebrate the completion of the trail journey at Monument 79 at the Canadian border.
